

Applied Adaptive Learning:

Pragmatic Approach, Measurable Success

The way in which techniques are learned and applied is as important to their success as the techniques themselves. Proven techniques with a modern approach provides quicker retention and utilization generating faster returns with a system that reacts better to change.

Come join us for a fun introduction into Applied Adaptive Learning. Through activity and discussion, we will cover an approach which:

- Gives insight into how you take back time for helping yourself and your company
- Provides a starting point for jumpstarting a measureable improvement movement
- Relates the effects of measureable improvement to positive sustainable change
- Provides the beginnings of a Sustainable Improvement Engine

Today's high-caliber talent is much more selective with their employment choices and are looking for environments that embrace a modern learning approach and change as opportunity.

This session is tuned for quick learning through activity, interaction and contextually relevant discussion. You will walk away with implementable ideas, some ah-ha's, and a thirst to know more.

Microlearning

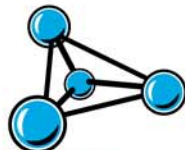

A Perfect Fit for Today's Workforce

Training has not kept up with all our technological advances. We can dress up the terminology, but until recently training options have been limited to classroom sessions, computer modules and occasionally interactivity and/or gamification. However the method in which our workforce consumes and retains information has grown and evolved. We may check a box, but it often doesn't do much to improve results.

Enter Microlearning, a system of learning that supports today's employee's habits and work environment while preparing your workforce for future success. Here is some of what you will learn in this seminar:

- What are the best modes of delivery based on the information to be delivered.
- The best technologies for your organization and content that will facilitate learning.
- How to set up a calendar curriculum of Microlearning events that touch each employee in a JIT (just in time) manner.
- How you can maximize Microlearning's impact in a Behavior-Based Learning environment.

Microlearning helps employees better remember critical information. Changing their behavior to actually move the needle on the metrics that matter most to your business. Employees are the lifeblood of our company, this seminar will show you how to improve the modern workforce and increase their capability one informational nugget at a time.
